

Ted Hensley
3-27-00 Dream

I want to tell you about a dream I had about Steve. He and I were standing in a field on a pretty day talking about the world. A large bird flew over. We watched him for awhile. I said "I wonder what it would be like to be that bird?" Steve said, "no problem" and I instantly became that bird, flapping my wings and looking around. I remember looking around and seeing my tail feathers! I was so startled that I woke myself up.

Of course he taught people how to fly, but also, he believed that you could do anything if you really wanted to. I think the dream fits him perfectly.
